In all of life, there are two modes under which the embodied human soul operates, as it lives, labors, and loves. These two are form and formlessness. Decidedly, most beings are unaware of both the presence and the purpose of formlessness. Experiences such as deep sleep, death, and a nondual meditation, as rare as that is, are examples, thus proofs, of the truth of formlessness.

Babaji will speak on these two ultimate modes of our awareness, with the intention of showing the interconnectedness that unites them, rather than the extreme variances that always threaten to place them at odds in the human context.

In this two-class offering from SRV Associations, the subject of Tantra will take prominence. Tantra has and holds many divine secrets for sensitive and discriminating practitioners of this day and time, and the most precious of these treasures are mostly hidden from them. Among rare secrets in Tantra lies the Divine Couple Themselves, overlooked in both study and worship by many interested beings courting this darshana as a spiritual pathway. Beyond the Purusha and Prakriti of philosophy, then, this set of two discourses will be designed to quickly penetrate and uncover the real Essence of Divine Love that are Paramasiva and Parashakti, using the winning combination of worship, bhakti, and study, jnanam, as the impetus.
